

Research Programmes

Research Programmes

As part of the dynamic research activity of the Department of Food Science and Nutrition, various research programmes are being implemented, covering a wide range of topics related to foods. These programs aim to generate new knowledge and address critical food challenges. This research is supported by funding from both national and European sources.

